

1960

George Bailey receives AICPA gold medal at the 1960 annual meeting

Anonymous

Follow this and additional works at: https://egrove.olemiss.edu/dl_tr

Part of the Accounting Commons, and the Taxation Commons

Recommended Citation

Quarterly, Vol. 06, no. 4 (1960, December), p. 29

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Deloitte Collection at eGrove. It has been accepted for inclusion in Touche Ross Publications by an authorized administrator of eGrove. For more information, please contact egrove@olemiss.edu.

*George Bailey
Receives AICPA
Gold Medal
at the 1960
Annual Meeting*

A VERY HIGH HONOR is the CPA Gold Medal, which is presented annually to one person for distinguished service to the accounting profession. Along with the medal, one side of which is shown above, Mr. Bailey received a citation that reads in part, "A former president of this Institute and member of its governing Council, he has served as a member or chairman of twenty-three Institute committees, guiding them always toward adapting the profession to the changing needs of society. His ingenuity and inventiveness have set a pace for the accounting profession in modern times. His wise counsel in social and economic affairs has brought distinction both to him and his profession."

* * *

"This award is made in appreciation of his dedicated and imaginative leadership in raising the standards of professional accounting."

John H. Zebley, right, Chairman of the 1959-1960 Awards Committee of the AICPA, presents the coveted gold medal to George Bailey at the annual meeting in Philadelphia.

