The University of Mississippi School of Law has been on the Ole Miss campus since 1854. In that time, Ole Miss Law has produced many distinguished alumni who have served as U.S. senators and representatives, state governors and other public officials.

And now, the Ole Miss law school has found a new home inside the new Robert C. Khayat Law Center.

The $50 million building opened in 2011 and is the academic home for the law school's roughly 500 students.

The goal of the law school is to provide students with not only a foundation for their futures, but also legal reasoning and writing skills along with real-life practice opportunities. We are thankful for the wonderful institution that is our law school and we are proud of the successes of our law alumni.

Former Mississippi Gov. Haley Barbour is an alumnus of Ole Miss School of Law.
