On Saturdays in the fall, there is no better place to be than in the Grove. The tailgating experience is on the bucket list of thousands of people across the nation. And Ole Miss faithful are lucky enough to have it, quite literally, as the front yard of our great university.

For that, we are very thankful.

The 10-acre park on campus hosts an estimated 100,000 people at a time on game days. Rebels fans and visitors both flock to the area, filled end-to-end with red and blue tents and Southern culinary staples.

place where we can all come together, eat, drink and talk football.

There are still two home games left, on Nov. 8 against Presbyterian College and the Egg Bowl on Nov. 29 (and we all know the implications of that one).

So bring your friends and family and show them why we are thankful and how to prepare for a football game the right way.

Hotty Toddy!

And with tailgaters dressed to the nines, it can also be described as a large outdoor fashion show filled with comments and questions such as "I love your blue dress!" or "Where'd you find that red necklace?"

It has become an identity of Ole Miss. I've found myself on numerous occasions bringing people to the Grove with no ties to Ole Miss except they've heard about the tailgating. And they instantly fall in love with everything about it.

Especially this fall, we are so thankful for a

Reuters: Keep an Eye on the Money Supply

U.S. inflation roller coaster prompts fresh look at long-ignored money supply By Michael S. Derby NEW YORK – The amount of money sloshing around the U.S. economy shrank last year for the first time on record, a development that some economists believe bolsters the case for U.S. inflation pressures continuing to abate. The Federal Reserve's
