9-30-1962

Annotated article by Anthony Harrigan to Charleston News and Courier, 30 September 1962

Anthony Harrigan

Follow this and additional works at: https://egrove.olemiss.edu/west_union_med

Part of the Journalism Studies Commons, and the United States History Commons

Recommended Citation
https://egrove.olemiss.edu/west_union_med/78

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Western Union Telegram Collection at eGrove. It has been accepted for inclusion in Telegrams to Media Outlets by an authorized administrator of eGrove. For more information, please contact egrove@olemiss.edu.
To Managing Editor
The News and Courier, Charleston, South Carolina

new lead for MAIN OXFORD STORY—

1962 SEP 30 PM 9 06

Federal marshals took command of the heart of Ole Miss campus tonight, firing smoke and nausea gas shells at xxx students who milled around the main administration building and shouted angrily as reports circulated that Gov. Ross Barnett had capitulated.

It was chemical warfare against Mississippians. Squads of marshals, wearing gasmasks, moved on the run from their lines on the steps of the white-columnned Lyceum, firing gas shells at groups of retreating students. It was a wild sight as the men in gasmasks raced through the darkness, lobbing shell after shell at students fleeing from the main theater of operations. The press ran with the students, trying to escape the chemical clouds that drifted through the fields across the campus.

The gas shells were fired after students threw cigaret butts at the army trucks parked to form a barrier in front of the marshals. The students shouted epithets at the marshals, saying "Why don't you go to Cuba? They yelled:

(more)
7-6-4-3, go to hell Kennedy."

When State Sen. George Yarbrough appeared to ask them not to to their dorms create a disturbance, the students shouted him down. They yelled him a why don't you tell the Yankee marshals to get off the campus?
One student in the front of the crowd asked: "Is he from Mississippi."

After the first barrage of gas shells, the students ran across and tree-covered the grassy area in front of the Lyceum. As soon as the smoke and gas cleared, they returned and moved back to the vicinity of the marshals. Soon cold drink bottles were being thrown at the marshals. That's when the second barrage came, and then the advancing skirmish line of marshals who fired as they ran.

-- Anthony Harrigan