

University of Mississippi

eGrove

Touche Ross Publications

Deloitte Collection

1961

Professional auditing training program

Anonymous

Follow this and additional works at: https://egrove.olemiss.edu/dl_tr

Part of the Accounting Commons, and the Taxation Commons

Recommended Citation

Quarterly, Vol. 07, no. 3 (1961, September), p. 40-41

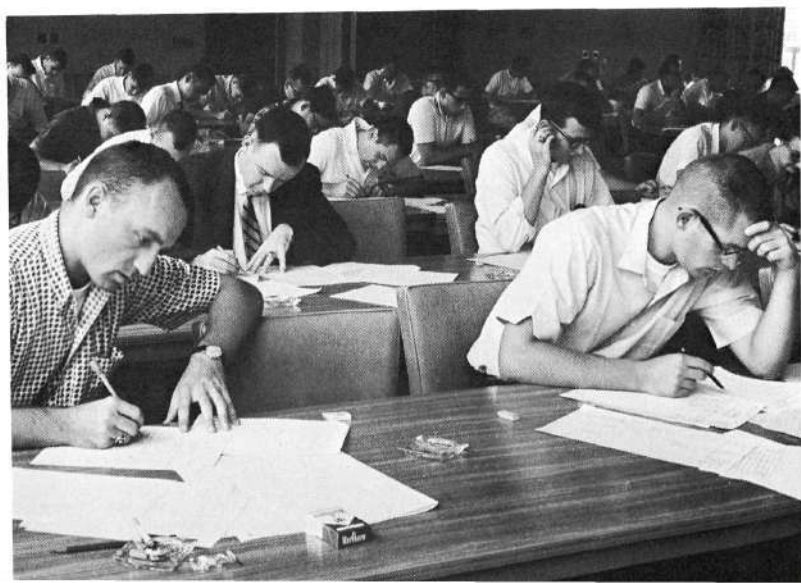

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Deloitte Collection at eGrove. It has been accepted for inclusion in Touche Ross Publications by an authorized administrator of eGrove. For more information, please contact egrove@olemiss.edu.

William Jackson of Washington and Donald Shore of Denver use adding machine to check the footing during a problem session.

Professional Auditing Training Program

Jay Imholte of Los Angeles, left, and Douglas Donaca of Portland found that writing the final examination took concentrated effort.

Ernest L. Marx of Los Angeles, James Baudhuin of Milwaukee, Chicago's Marjorie June and Dayton's Joyce McGrew hard at work.

MOST IMPORTANT PART of the two-week professional auditing training program held July 30-August 11 is the work done in the discussion groups. By working out problems and exchanging opinions with the instructors and other students, the 124 young accountants gained valuable insights into accounting practice. This year the program was held at air-conditioned Kellogg Center on the campus of Michigan State University at East Lansing.

Instructor Milton Kuyers of Milwaukee helps a member of his group with a problem during an afternoon discussion period.

