November the 19th 1868

Miss Bell

I received your kind letter and you can not imagine how happy it made me. to hear you say I could now write a letter to my dear Mother with safety.

I would give almost any thing to see you I have often and often times thought of your kindness in helping me out of the Yankee lines. I was surprised to hear you were in Mobile. I expect Brother was very much so. My dear Father is here with me, so I am no longer lonely, he is so cheerful.

Miss Bell. you will do me the greatest favor I could ask of you. if you will send this letter to my sweet Mother enclosed in yours. I will not put it in an envelope, will you please direct it, you know best how to do so. I received a letter today from my Mother. she tells me to direct my letters to her this way. Mr C. B. Carr Oh I hope she will receive it for I know she will be happy to hear from her Love

Dear Miss

It becomes my painful duty to announce to you the death of our mutual friend George Jones - I met him and Mr Rowledge at Rome Ga after our command had left for this place - the second day after we left there as we were crossing the Chattooga River about two miles from Cedar Bluff he was drowned the River was swarming and his horse threw him off he could not swim and before we could give him any assistance he went down and near now we used every exertion to recover his body but - failed - having frequently heard him speak of you as one of his particular friends I write to you hoping that you will have an opportunity to break the news to his Sister - Your brother Ed is with the company and well

Mobile Ala

My dear friend, I start in the morning for Meridian Miss and possibly will go as far as Brandon, and it may be, I will go before returning to some point on the Miss River under orders from Richmond, received soon after you left here, so you see how fortunate as well as unfortunate I was in not going with you & Miss Chewley to Mobile.

I go on important official business the nature which I will not trouble you to relate; but the Time when I will be back is what I wish to write you about, and yet this is the very thing that I don't know myself.

My mind is pretty fully made up to go with you to Brandon when you first come if I can find out when this is, and I can possibly leave my official engagements long enough, and I hope to get through with the matters now pending upon me by the time you wish to return. I will try to write you from Meridian or Brandon when I will know better how much time I will have before me, and it is possible that my business engagements will keep me on this Miss long enough to enable me to meet you at Meridian or Brandon and go with you from there; but this must be determined in the future, and will depend upon the length of time you will remain in Mobile; as well as my own movements which shall be regulated to suit your convenience as much as possible.

Write me upon receiving this and direct to care Capt A. Vanua Meridian, and let me know when you will go home, if you have fixed a definite time in your own mind, for I doubt not with your present very pleasant surroundings you will be a loss to fix the hour of departure; but for your consolation let me remind you that Moses was once separated from his people for a long time; but finally "come out of the wilderness" all right, with a wife wedded while he was away from home.

Don't fail to write to me, for you know I must write this letter home by you, and this will have to be done before me, or you as the case may be, start up to Paula -

I have been to the express office and told the agt that I was looking for a small package from Mobile. (The fellows) don't forget them - the Tailor is making my coat now - send them by Le Pioneer Express, if you have it already started there.
I wish I had time to write you a more decent letter, and a long letter to tell you how I missed you when you left, and then when I think of you and Miss Shawley the morning before you left I almost impatiently give my mustache a twist, and Oh! how pleasant the memory gets - how gracefully - how pleasant you both acquiesce yourselves, and to me like twin berries, or the following two ripe peaches from the same limb

Remember me kindly to Miss Shawley, and ask her how she the life - at my last examination I thought them better, if not entirely well -

What we know you found matters when you got to Mobile; and if you do not understand my exact meaning ask Miss Shawley, and tell me also how you are spending your time, and whether Mr friends Mr & Miss Smith have called on you or not - I wrote to them the evening you left.

With our best wishes we must believe me your friend and shall do so.

Yours truly
John H. Price Majors

Miss Bell. what has become of Miss Sallie Kirk I suppose she is with you.

I suppose Brother has told you the place I am stationed on. I am on board the C.S. Steamer Georgia. it is a floating battery. stationed three miles below Savannah City. I did not fulfill my promise. dont you remember when I started from your house. I said I would be back again in less than a month.

I would have done so. but the Yankees got between us. I would like to have a long conversation with you. but I am afraid it will be along time. unless some lucky chance should allow me a furlough.

Give my respects to Mrs. Challe Kirk Miss Bell. if I am not asking to much will you please answer. because I would like to know if you received this letter.

and it gives me great pleasure to hear from you that is my friend. give my love to Brother. and tell him I will write to him excuse this writing. I hate to finish but as it is getting late. I will have to close

Columbiana Dec 2nd

Dear Belle

Agreeable to promise, I hasten to write you; waiting only long enough to get settled, & feel at home; Columbiana is not such a bad place after all, and as we are with such pleasant people as Dr McKie & his family, I think I could content myself here, even longer than I will have to stay. I have been thinking about you a great deal my dear friend, and my heart has ached with intense sympathy for your great trouble; I yearn to administer some healing balm, to offer some soothing remedy for your wounded heart, but alas! for the inability of women to offer consolation for any such suffering; silence after all is most expensive, and I frequently see that means of showing sympathy, though in your case it often lead to the unjust charge of coldness, even when I was feeling most for you; my dear child you could not begin to understand or appreciate how deeply & sincerely I felt all you were undergoing; I have gone through many a severe trial, & thought there could be none more bitter, but yours, surpasses all; I know not what to say. I know I speak idle words when I say; Go! forget him! he is not worthy to be thought of, as you think. Yet I cannot speak harshly of him without violating the trust & confidence placed in me as his friend, which I promised faithfully to be, though all others assailed him; I have never been a false friend, & I would not begin now. You see how I am situated. I hope you had a pleasant visit to La Grange; I wish I could have gone with you, as I could then have seen your sister & Louisa too; I have just finished a long letter to you, telling her about our trip to Mobile, but I suppose you gave her a more full & better account; Willie is visiting now to me; I will send it with your your letter, & I will wait until Anna goes, before we are visiting home, as one letter can tell all of us news from this quarter: we are looking for Anna every day: Mollie says, if Anna goes now to Mobile again, we will go too; but I'm afraid I would not enjoy it as much as before as "Dick" will be away, & I would miss him so much, bless his old heart! Give my best love she to him, & tell not to forget to bring me something pretty when he returns from your travels: and say to Dr. Kiddle for me, I trust he will not become so much infatuated with the widow & her as to forget to visit his friend Mollie: by the way Bell: if you go back to Mobile you will be certain to have the pleasure of her company home with you: Tell your husband I sent a kiss to him; I trust he will always love him, for his kindness to us.

I wish dear child I had something pleasant to say to you, but I know too well, nothing that I could say, would give more than a transient gleam of pleasure: but be assured of one thing: you have in me a true friend; and if I can ever serve you, you know it would make me happy to do so; don't forget me after you reach home but continue to write, & I will always answer, write to me before leaving Mobile.

Remember me kindly to all of our friends here: & say I hope to be with them soon again: when you go home, say every thing which you can think of, to Ma, Pappa & Sue all alone: make them as happy as possible & talk us all; I need a letter from Anna last night & she too is charmed with "Dixie".
Good bye dear Bell; hoping to hear from you soon, I am ever your true friend Thallie.

Mobile Ala. My ever dear friend, I promised myself when we last parted, that I would set apart some portion of today, for the purpose of writing you such a letter, as I ever then, while with you, felt, that I wished to write you; but things of less welcome, and decidedly, more material nature have been so crowded upon my attention almost every hour since I saw you that I almost feel unequal to the requirements of the present moment.

I desire to tell you much, too much for the short space of one letter, and yet it may be nothing that has not already passed through your own mind & heart, except it may be some matters exclusively about myself of which it is quite possible I have told you all before.

Friendly letters, to me, are something more than mere ink and paper, or words and sentences, and though there may be nothing new in subject matter, yet there is always a presence of the writer, attended with a sort of spiritual communion hallowed by the sacred memory of the past, that seems to brighten, at least for a time, the too often dark pathway of life, and represses the soul to pursue its journey with renewed energy, like the fragrance of flowers and the babbling brook to the way worn traveler. And taking it for granted that the feelings and sentiments which animate my own heart, are common to us both I write with the hope, that the voice of friendship may prove a welcomed visitor though no special message is delivered.

Allow me to say to you, my dear friend, that, having lived much longer in the world than you, and having enjoyed as much of its good, and that which is commonly called happiness, as usually falls to the lot of most of persons in this life, and I assure you, upon a retrospect of the past I see nothing to inspire the desire to live it over again; it is true there are many sweet memories and senti-ments that are welcomed still as precious & refreshing springs of pleasure, at which we should accustom ourselves to drink often rather than in the more turbid pools of bitterness & disappoint-ment. But these green spots of the past, are still in our posses-sion, we need not live life over again to enjoy them, they belo-ng as well to the present, as the past, like precious jewels that have been treasured up, and may be enjoyed now, if we only would, separate from the labor & pain which they cost us. Thus you see, all the good of life & the past may be saved to us even in this world, and in the light of revelation how doubly bright and precious these blessings become, if the immortal interest of the soul have been happily not neglected when the sands of life are run out, and this brings me to the great central idea, to which, unworthy as I am, I wish with the voice of friendship to turn your attention. - You will remember I made some allusion to my own faith and belief in an overruling provid-ence at our last interview; but my heart was then too much affected, and my mind too much disturbed to say to you what I wished, and what, I now believe is all the better by being written.

Oh! that I could so win your heart as to be able to bathe it, not in Lethe's oblivious waters, which might rob you of the bright side of past life; but in that precious fountain of blood, and heal it with that safe and effectual remedy, the ever blessed "balm of Gilead" - I know my dear friend, that you may very naturally say that my precept is not in keeping with my example - This, with shame and confusion to myself, I must acknowledge is too true; but nevertheless, whatever appearance may be, and as unworthy and ungrateful as I feel myself to be, you may rest assured I am not recommending the waters of an untried fountain; but rather one from which many a refreshing draught has been drawn, and that too when the dark clouds of gloom & bitterness hung heaviest over my future - There is much of sovereign philosophy in disappointment and adversity, and I believe, in almost every instance they are heavens choicest blessings in disguise, though we may, from the blindness & weakness of poor human nature fail to see & enjoy the good that providence holds in store for us - Of course, I predicate what I have said, as well as what I have to say, in this connection; upon your acquiescence in my belief in the truth of Revelation. You know that there is but one object according to the teachings of Revelation, that is worth to be loved with all of our hearts soul & strength, without the sin of idolatry on our part: that is, according to my understanding, we are not permitted to so concentrate our hearts & affection on any earthly object as to neglect the higher interest of the soul, and when we do it, we are in danger, and having the interest of the nobler part of our nature so jeopardised by the poisonous draught which we so eagerly seek; we must admit that providence to be a blessing, which takes from us the cup before it is drunk to the bitter and everlasting dregs, though we may be almost overcome, for the time, by the dark billows of disappointment. I feel assured that there is a higher destiny, a brighter day in store for you, yet in the future, and I must believe that one who has exhibited so much fortitude, and encountered so many dangers for the good of others & a beloved country in distress, will at least exercise some of that large store of virtues for self protection,

General,

Permit me the pleasure of introducing Mrs Bernard Pratte, who is an exile from Missouri, and whose husband is an Officer serving in General Price's Command.
Mrs Pratte is anxious to reach her husband if the route is practicable; and in the event that it is not, she desires to go to her Mother in Kentucky or to her home in Knowing that you will take pleasure in furnishing her with information, and such assistance as will be compatible with the interests of the Service and the requirements of a lady, I do not hesitate to make the request.

In the goodness of your noble, womanly, and patriotic heart you have doubtless been too confiding; but while the geyser of this crystal fountain may be disturbed, yet thank God, its limpid waters are still pure, and in spotless innocence & truth will continue to reflect, and perpetuate the deformity and blackness of the heart that would dare disturb its rest.

Dispise not, nor think not one particle the less of yourself my dear friend, for you have almost innumerable friends with true hearts & loving who good opinion and appreciation is richly worth living for, and that too with the highest opinion of yourself.

And now allow me to say to you in writing, what I have already promised verbally, that all that you have intrusted to me in confidence shall be kept most sacred; and allow me to say that I thank you most heartily for the compliment you have paid me in making me your confidant, and in return I can but remain at all times your obedient servant.

And now, the balance of my paper about my dear wife & children and myself; and first if you go to her, see them for me if you can, for I am in despair of hearing from them otherwise & if you so they will send me by you such things as I need, a memorandum of which I herewith send you, if you do not go you will please call on Mr George J.
