Spring 1992

Success story: The Accounting History Methodology Conference

Academy of Accounting Historians

Follow this and additional works at: https://egrove.olemiss.edu/aah_notebook

Part of the Accounting Commons, and the Taxation Commons

Recommended Citation

Accounting Historians, Academy of (1992) "Success story: The Accounting History Methodology Conference," Accounting Historians Notebook: Vol. 15 : No. 1 , Article 1. Available at: https://egrove.olemiss.edu/aah_notebook/vol15/iss1/1

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Archival Digital Accounting Collection at eGrove. It has been accepted for inclusion in Accounting Historians Notebook by an authorized editor of eGrove. For more information, please contact egrove@olemiss.edu.
The Academy of Accounting Historians hosted the Accounting History Research Methodology Conference at The University of Mississippi on December 6-7, 1991. Finley Graves, Lee Parker, and the organizing committee of Ed Arrington, Tom Burns, Roxanne Johnson, and Geoffrey Mills deserve a special congratulations for a job well-done.

Indeed, the conference was a success beyond expectations and a significant contribution to the recognition of accounting history research. More than sixty-five attendees, representing an estimated seven countries, twenty states, and forty universities participated in the program. Twelve papers were presented and discussed in a manner one would surely describe as spirited.

At the conference dinner, Dr. Charles R. Wilson, Associate Professor of History and Southern Studies at the University of Mississippi provided an entertaining intro-

continued on page 13
was not going to follow-up on her work and prepare selected biographies on the American authors. In the letter reacting to her resignation, he also wrote "During the next two or three years it will be necessary for me to restrict my writing to material for classroom instruction. After that, I hope to be able to devote my entire time to the history. And by then perhaps you will have had enough of teaching, and will be interested in again joining forces with me. I hope so." Ruth left in June, 1937, for a long and distinguished career as a professor of Library Science at Simmons College and retired in 1971.

From 1937 through the late 1950's, she continued to buy books for Bentley and did some research for him in 1957 on Pacioli, for which Bentley noted her efforts as co-author on a brief treatise on Pacioli. Ruth is still active today as a volunteer archivist for two organizations.

During my review of Ruth's notes, I was most fascinated by the material on James Arlington Bennett. Ruth said that he was the most interesting of the authors, and she thought Bentley also was most fascinated by Bennett — a physician, lawyer, and bookkeeping writer. I hope that more can be done with Ruth's notes on Bennett.

Bentley and Leonard were quite a team. Harry C. Bentley certainly deserves more credit than he has received as an accounting historian. His interest in accounting history led to the spending of a considerable sum of money for the completion and publication of the bibliographies and various pamphlets, and for a collection of books, which were donated to the Boston

continued on page 20

Success Story: continued from page 1

duction to the real meaning of "tacky," particularly "Southern tacky" collectibles. All dinner participants now have a much better insight to giftshop browsing, and if Dr. Wilson's guidelines are followed, we should be able to greatly improve our tacky collections.

The conference was such as success that more people registered than were printed conference papers. Finley has requested that anyone with a set of papers they do not want to keep consider donating the set of papers to him. He has a need for additional copies.

Anyone interested in a copy of one of the papers should contact the author(s). The papers presented at the conference were:

Critiques of Accounting History Research I

"Historical Explanation in Accounting Research"

Michael F. Van Breda, Southern Methodist University

"On the Proliferation of Accounting Histories"

Christine Cooper, University of Strathclyde

Tony Puxty, University of Strathclyde

Discussant: Ed Arrington, Louisiana State University

Critiques of Accounting History Research II

"Accounting History and Empirical Research"

Barbara D. Merino, University of North Texas

Alan G. Mayper, University of North Texas

"A Critique of the New School in the History of Accountancy' by Accounting History: The Paradigms of Depreciation and Price Calculation"

Dieter Schneider, Ruhr-University Bochum

Discussant: Trevor Hopper, University of Manchester

Antipodean Critiques

"Hierarchy and Ideology as Accounting Generators: The Case of Municipal Accounting in Sweden and Norway"

Lars-Eric Bergevarn, Gothenburg School of Economics

Frode Mellemvik, Bodo Graduate School
Olov Olson, Norwegian School of Economics and Business
"Inquiry into the Development of Ideas Tolstoy, Capra, the Tyranny of Reason-ability, and Uncommon Wisdom"
Frank L. Clarke, University of Newcastle
Discussant: Lee Parker, The Flinders University of South Australia

Michel Foucault and Accounting History
"The Influence of Michel Foucault on Historical Research in Accounting: An Assessment"
Peter Armstrong, University of Sheffield
"Accounting and the Construction of Institutions: The Case of a Factory
Eamonn Walsh, New York University
Ross Stewart, Seattle Pacific University
Discussant: David Cooper, University of Alberta

On the History of the Profession
"Protection for Whom? Early Attempts to Legislate for the Registration of Accountants"
Moyra J. M. Kedslie, University of Hull

Alistair Preston, Boston University
Paul Scarbrough, Boston University
Robert Chilton, Boston University
Discussant: Patricia Arnold, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee

Examining the Evidence: "Accounting Contracts and the Courts"
Patti A. Mills, Indiana State University
Michael R. Harmon, Indiana State University

Thomas Tyson, St. John Fisher College
Discussant: Richard Briston, University of Hull