THE PACIOLI SEMINAR 1994 AND FESTIVAL OF ACCOUNTING

The Institute of Chartered Accountants of Scotland (ICAS) is sponsoring a one-day Festival of Accounting in Edinburgh. Two themes of “Measurement, Mismeasurement, and Stewardship” and “Accounting and Information Technology” are the bases for this Festival. This program will be held on March 4, 1994 in conjunction with the Netherlands Institut van Register-accountants. There will also be an exhibition demonstrating the accountant’s historical and contemporary role in society. The Festival will be attended by leading accountants, business executives, and government officials.

The Academy has agreed to co-sponsor a one-day history seminar, Pacioli Seminar 1994, to celebrate the five hundredth anniversary of the publication of Pacioli’s bookkeeping treatise which precedes the Festival on March 3, 1994. The Academy’s decision to work with ICAS to present this seminar is consistent with its goal of greater involvement in activities to promote accounting history at an international level. ICAS’s goal is to encourage greater participation of leading accounting historians as presenters and participants.

The overall project, the Pacioli Seminar 1994 on March 3 and the Festival of Accounting on March 4, is managed by Moyra Kedslie (The University of Hull), Tom Lee (University of Alabama), and Aileen Beattie (ICAS) and under the general supervision of Nigel McDonald, President-Elect of the ICAS. Inquiries may be forwarded to one of these individuals.
