

University of Mississippi

eGrove

American Institute of Accountants

Deloitte Collection

9-27-1909

Twenty-Second Anniversary, the American association of Public Accountants, to Be Held in Denver, October 19, 20, 21, 1909

J. B. Geijsbeek

Follow this and additional works at: https://egrove.olemiss.edu/dl_aia

Part of the Accounting Commons

TWENTY-SECOND ANNIVERSARY

THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS

TO BE HELD IN DENVER, OCTOBER 19, 20, 21, 1909

*Re 9/10
C. W. Nunn*

OFFICE OF
CHAIRMAN TRANSPORTATION COMMITTEE
J. B. GEIJSBEEK
806 EQUITABLE BUILDING

DENVER, COLORADO Sept. 27, 1909.

Dear Sir:

The replies received to our recent letter in regard to the attendance at the Convention are very encouraging; at least, if we may judge from the percentage of the total number who replied. However, about one-third only have sent in the reply postal forwarded to them. We would be pleased to hear from those who have not yet consented to come. The time is getting close and we would appreciate to receive final decisions.

Denver is large and generous and we can accommodate all who wish to come. Do not forget that your attendance at this convention will not only be a help to the profession but will do you personally more good than any other convention you may attend at any future time in any other city of the United States.

First of all we have pointed out in our previous letters the great value of the educational features of this convention, not only in the way of papers and discussions, (which will be really and honestly had) but in the way of learning all about the natural advantages and resources of the future commercial center of the United States. The developments of the resources of the state of Colorado are yet in their infancy; not a thousandth part of the possibilities of the state of Colorado in the way of natural resources has been divulged to the world. You may think it is a mining state, or at best, a state with thousands of square miles of useless waste land and useless mountains. While this is true, we invite you to examine the statistics issued by the Government of the United States and you will be surprised at the enormous value of agricultural products produced by this state. You will also see that they exceed the output of some so-called agricultural states.

But far better it is for you to come and see for yourself. The entertainment committee will give you splendid opportunities and facilities to become acquainted at close range with the agricultural, mining and manufacturing features of this wonderful state. You will have the opportunity to study these important features of your professional career in addition to the unexcelled beauties of the plains and the Rocky Mountains, with the turquoise sky which far excels the sky above the beautiful bay of Naples, and with the sunny climate which is such a blessing to the invalid and to the well man.

Therefore, in your own interest do not forget to at once notify the committee of your intention to attend the convention at Denver. We will be glad to see you here, and the Colorado Society and the officials of the city of Denver and of the state of Colorado have repeatedly said: "The more the merrier."

Respectfully yours,

J. B. Geijsbeek