HERBERT M. TEMPLE, MINNESOTA
EDWARD E. GORE, ILLINOIS.

Feb. 12, 1913.

Dear Sir:

Within the next year it is expected that legislation at Washington will be considered which may affect accountants in many ways, whether it be under possible Income Tax legislation or in other directions.

In view of this it is considered advisable to be able to count on the active co-operation of the several business communities which are served by accountants, and to that end we respectfully urge you, and all other accountants practicing in your city, to become members of and participate in the activities of its principal Civic or Commerce Association or Commercial Club, with the end in view of being able at the proper time to enlist its aid.

The American Association of Public Accountants, through its officers and committees will, as in the past, watch the interests of our profession and press its legitimate claims for proper recognition. The importance is felt, however, of having the support of the leading business interests as represented by the commercial associations, and it is for that purpose we urge you to become identified with your local club or association. The influence of a hundred thousand business men from all parts of the country may be of great importance to us, and we fully believe that we can command this influence if the suggestion herein made is followed.

Kindly advise us of such action as you may take.

Yours truly,

ARTHUR YOUNG, Chairman,
HERBERT M. TEMPLE,
EDWARD E. GORE,

Committee on Federal Legislation.
