Dear James Meredith,

Although I am neither a Negro nor a fellow American, I still want to write you this letter to tell you how my wife and I admire your courage and determination to enroll at the University against such tremendous odds. Being also a student I can understand your position there. For somebody with a will-power like you have, there must be a successful future, despite everything that is happening right now. I don't know if you believe in a God, but be assured that I will pray for you often.

Yours truly,

Abraham Brandenburg
