ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE,
CAMBRIDGE.

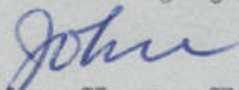

27 October 1962

Dear Jim,

I am spending the year here at the University of Cambridge as the Pitt Professor of American History and Institutions. Last week when I returned to New York for a four-day visit to give some lectures your good letter arrived. I did not have time to reply to it while there, but I did take time to autograph four of my books for James Meredith. I sent them to you to pass on to him at your convenience. I was pleased to learn that he is a student of history, and I wish him much success. I knew that you would take an interest in him, and I very much appreciate your doing what you can for him.

As you can well imagine there has been a very lively interest here in the events that transpired at the University of Mississippi. I have done what I could to interpret the problem and place it in its proper perspective. I do hope that things have settled down as they appear to have done. One of these days I hope that you and I can have a long talk on the whole situation -- if we survive the Cuba tangle! Aurelia and my ten year old Whit are fine and are enjoying Cambridge. They join me in sending our best to you and yours. Again, thanks!

Sincerely yours,

John Hope Franklin
