Dear Dr. Silver:

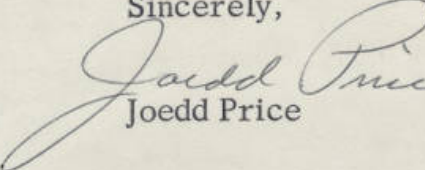

Chris and I drove to Roanoke, Virginia, by 9:30 Sunday night. I caught a Trailways Bus to Chapel Hill, arriving about 8 o'clock the next morning.

A graduate student could hardly be more indebted to his professor than I am to you: the instructorship at North Carolina, the time you spent pushing me through the thesis and my orals, the $50, etc. This is why disappointing you in both the writing of my thesis and the taking of my orals hurt me tremendously. I'm not too sure I can ever repay the favors. I should, however, be able to return the $50. I plan to publish a book soon: Benjy Goes to Ole Miss. If it is the least bit successful, I may be able to repay you in Miami.

Looks like Meredith will be with you at Ole Miss this year. I expect you to cover the event with a well written analysis which should get you fired. Perhaps I could get you an instructorship here at North Carolina.

Good luck this next year.

Sincerely,

Joedd Price
