6 December 1963

Mr. Richard L. Wentworth, Director
Louisiana State University Press
Baton Rouge, Louisiana

Dear Mr. Wentworth:

Your letter of December 2 asks that we send you one of the two copies of Mr. Silver's address; then you ask that we furnish you with a copy in the same form in which it will appear in the Journal. The two things are not quite the same.

As a matter of fact, since Mr. Silver holds the copyright of his address, and since it has not been published in the Journal, it seems to us that the Journal makes an inappropriate third party. We shall be happy to co-operate, however, by returning to him one of the copies, which, except for some minor changes, will be the same as that which we expect to publish in the February issue.

If what you want is the address in the identical form in which it appears in the Journal, then you will have to wait until the galley is prepared, checked, and ready for return to the printer. We hope this will be in the month of December.

In line with the above we are sending Mr. Silver a copy of this letter and returning one copy of the address to him. We suggest that you write him, if this is the copy you want.

Sincerely,

Philip F. Detweiler
Managing Editor

Jim:
Wentworth is too enterprising a character for my blood, hence the tone. We'll send you the copy mentioned in the 4th paragraph, on Monday.

Phil
