Introduction

This directory lists firms that have expressed an interest in performing peer reviews or quality reviews of other firms. The directory was prepared as a convenience for these firms and for others that are members of the AICPA Division for CPA Firms or that are enrolled in the AICPA's Quality Review Program.

The firms listed are members of the Private Companies Practice Section (PCPS) of the AICPA Division for CPA Firms. The PCPS was established in 1977. Its member firms have always been required to have periodic peer reviews. Information about any PCPS member firm and its most recent peer review is available from the firm itself, or from the AICPA staff as indicated on this directory's inside front cover.

Listing a firm in this directory does not constitute an endorsement by the American Institute of CPAs or any component of the Institute. Each of the AICPA's review programs—the PCPS program, the SEC Practice Section (SECPs) program, and the quality review program—has established specific qualifications for reviewers, which are set forth in the standards for performing and reporting on each type of review. It is the responsibility of the reviewed firm to ascertain that the firm it engages to perform its review is appropriately qualified.

Each listed firm has contributed to the cost of publishing the directory. They are not the only firms that might be qualified to conduct reviews.

Many factors enter into the selection of reviewers. The Appendix to this directory presents an April 1988 article on this subject by a member of the PCPS Peer Review Committee. While the article focuses primarily on peer reviews for the Division for CPA Firms, its contents should be helpful to all firms that are contemplating reviews of their practices.

* * * * *

This directory lists firms in two separate sections. The first section, arranged alphabetically within state, presents the firm's name, address (only one per firm), the name and phone number of the person to contact, the firm size category, the number of offices, and the types of reviews that the firm is interested in performing. It also presents, by numeric code, up to ten client categories that the firm has indicated it is qualified to review. Some firms have indicated just one category, 999, representing that the firm is qualified in more than ten of the categories included in the client category codes.

The second listing is sequenced alphabetically within six firm size categories. It shows a firm’s name, city and state, and is useful primarily as a cross reference.

Selecting a Peer Review Team With the “Right Stuff”

By a Member of the PCPS Peer Review Committee

(Reprinted from the April 1988 PCPS Advocate)

If your firm is scheduled to undergo a peer review during 1988, you are probably asking yourself “What type of review would be best for us?” A number of alternatives are available to you, including a review by a team appointed by the AICPA (a CART, for “committee-appointed review team”), by another member firm (a firm-on-firm review), by an authorized association (if your firm is a member of an association), or by an authorized state CPA society.

The peer review team captain and team members are key factors in determining how helpful and efficient your peer review will be. You have the most control over their selection if you have a firm-on-firm review. (In the interest of full disclosure, I should mention that my firm has performed a number of firm-on-firm reviews.)

In recent years, member firms have performed more than 40% of the reviews. To have another firm perform your review, you must first identify one or more qualified firms. The AICPA Quality Control Review Division staff will, on request, send you a list of firms that have indicated an interest in performing peer reviews.

You should then investigate the background, suitability, and experience of several of these firms. This will help you to ensure an efficient and effective review that will provide the most benefit to your firm.

This article explores the factors you should consider when selecting another firm to perform your peer review.

Background of the Firms

The first step is checking the background of the firms that you have identified as possible candidates. To do this, you may ask the AICPA Division for CPA Firms to mail you information contained in the firms’ public files, which includes peer review reports, letters of comment and annual reports. While this information is helpful, you should also contact the firm directly. This will enable you to obtain resumes of the partners and managers who do peer reviews as well as detailed information about the type of clients the firm serves.

The firm’s attitude towards performing reviews is also important. You should try to select a firm that will view you as an important client and not as an unwelcome intrusion. I recently heard of a review in which, to save money, a firm hired another firm in the same city. The reviewing firm sent people over to do the review when they had time, sometimes spending only a few hours at a time. While this may have helped fill up otherwise non-chargeable time for the reviewing firm, it resulted in an inefficient review.

The type and size of the team captain’s and members’ practice unit have an important effect on the review’s efficiency and effectiveness. I have seen reviews where reviewers from larger, multi-office firms had difficulties in reviewing and providing helpful suggestions to a small one office firm. However, a reviewer from a slightly larger firm (or one who has been with a larger firm) may be helpful in providing insights into practice problems you may encounter as you grow.

You should determine that the firm has received an unqualified opinion on its own most recent review, since this is a requirement for reviewing firms. (Editor’s Note: This provision does not become effective for reviews of firms enrolled in the AICPA quality review program until January 1, 1992, except that if the firm has had a quality review or peer review before that date, the report on the review must be unqualified.) Also, check the letter of comment and the firm’s response, since these can reveal a great deal about the firm’s quality.

Finally, inquire whether the firm can meet your timing and scheduling requirements.

Experience of the Firm

The second step is learning more about the potential review firm’s experience. You should, of course, consider whether it has the necessary experience in the industries in which you practice. For example, if your primary clients are farmers, for whom you prepare income tax basis compilations, you do not want the reviewing firm to send its SEC expert. If you have SEC clients or clients in a specialized industry, or if you perform work under the Single Audit Act, you should make sure that the candidates have experience in these areas.

You should also identify the individuals who will comprise the peer review team and inquire about their peer review experience, since it is important to check the qualifications of the specific individuals assigned rather than just relying on the firm's general reputation. Simply having the necessary industry experience does not guarantee that the reviewers will have the skills and experience to evaluate your system of quality control.

If the team members are from the same firm and have worked together on peer reviews, many of the potential inefficiencies of using people from different firms should be eliminated. A partner in our firm participated in a four-person CART review where all the team members traveled to the firm's home office the night before the review to meet the team captain and discuss plans for the review, and then spent over half the next day traveling to the offices they were actually going to review. This represented wasted time, which would not have been spent on a well planned firm-on-firm review.

You also need to determine whether the team captain has attended a peer reviewers' training course since 1985, since this is required by both sections. (Editor's Note: It is also required by the AICPA quality review program.) Reviewed firms are responsible for determining that the reviewers meet the Section's basic qualifications. Failure to meet these qualifications can cause (and has caused) the peer review committee to reject peer review reports.

You should ask for references of other firms your size that the candidates have reviewed. Call them and discuss their experiences. Ask them whether they received helpful insights from their reviewers and whether they considered the reviewers to be knowledgeable, efficient and fair. Many firms consider the informal exchange of ideas to be the major benefit of a peer review. Inquire whether the candidates were helpful in sharing ideas from their own practices.

Fees
You should discuss the fee after you have determined that the firm is qualified. Since you are now "the client," you need to remember the advice you give your own clients: "The lowest fee isn't necessarily the lowest cost." A firm that can plan, perform and report on an engagement efficiently will save unnecessary time on your part, both during and after the review. A clear understanding in advance will help avoid misunderstandings later. If the review is to be on a fixed fee basis, determine if there are any contingencies. If it is to be on an hourly basis, obtain a budget reflecting the rates that will be charged.
To enable the reviewers to provide you with an accurate budget, you will need to give them sufficient background information. Items that would be helpful include: copies of your prior peer review report, letter of comment, and your response to that letter (make sure at this time that you have done what you said you would do); copies of your inspection reports since your last peer review; a copy of your quality control document and those parts of your audit or procedure manuals, if any, related to the supervision and review of engagements; information on the number of accounting and auditing hours; the size and location of your offices; and information regarding the number of SEC clients and Single Audit Act engagements. It is also a good idea to give the review team some information about your largest audit clients in order to help them budget their time and make sure the right people are on the team. Be a good client; be prepared for your "auditor."

Timing

A properly planned peer review is like a properly planned audit; it is not an accident! It takes careful forethought, and the further in advance it is planned the better. You have a better chance of having an efficient and effective review if you plan it well in advance. It is not unusual for reviews to be planned six to nine months ahead.
