September 4, 1925.

To Members of the American Institute of Accountants.

Developments in accounting methods have grown out of more careful administration of government finance but this has been possible only where the problems of government involved were understood by the accountant. For instance, special assessments, presenting, as it does, certain definite government problems, must be understood before an accurate and suitable accounting method can be planned. The NATIONAL MUNICIPAL REVIEW is the one magazine reporting in an unprejudiced and authoritative way on government problems and, as well as receiving the REVIEW and its technical supplements monthly, members have open to them the advantage of our inquiry service. See listed below a few selected articles carried in recent issues of the REVIEW:

Special Assessments - A Means of Financing Municipal Improvements
Minor Highway Privileges as a Source of City Revenue
Cincinnati's Comprehensive City Plan
The Pro and Con of the Annexation of Suburbs
Indiana's Scheme of Central Supervision of Local Expenditures
Chief Elements of Controversy in Public Utility Rate Making
Insurance of Municipal Bonds
How Los Angeles is Spending Her Power Bonds
The Bonded Debt of 207 Cities, 1925
Comparative Tax Rates in 207 Cities, 1924
State Supervision of Municipal Finance in New Jersey
Ohio By-Passes the Smith Law
Bank and Corporation Taxes in Massachusetts
Assessment of Real Estate

"Municipal Budgets and Budget Making" - Special attention is called to this book recently published by the League.

Very truly yours,

H. W. Dodds
Secretary.

The
National Municipal League

YOU ARE INVITED to become a member of the National Municipal League. Founded in 1894, the League has been everlastingly busy for better things in government.

IT is absolutely non-partisan. It never indulges in personalities. It is a national organization equipped to help the states, cities and counties draft their constitutions and charters, resolve their tax and budget difficulties, improve the administration of justice, secure welfare legislation, meet their public utility problems, etc.

IT is not too much to say that the principles adopted from time to time by the National Municipal League are the uniform basis upon which political reform in local communities from coast to coast proceeds without lost motion or false theory and always in the same direction toward making American democratic government workable, responsible and responsive.

The
National Municipal Review

MEMBERSHIP IN THE LEAGUE brings you without charge the NATIONAL MUNICIPAL REVIEW monthly. It is a full sized magazine, not published for profit, but as an essential service to those who dislike antiquated systems of government, corrupt political gangs, slipshod public finance, fragmentary city planning, reactionary legislation, improvident utility franchises and lax standards of public administration.

THE REVIEW has no competitor. There is nothing else like it. And yet it supplies indispensable information upon matters relating to citizenship. By means of articles, reports of current events and comment it reports for you the latest developments, the most interesting experiments, the latest theories respecting this big matter of government.

Some who do not care to join the League subscribe to the REVIEW at five dollars a year.

A sample copy will be sent you gladly
