August 23, 1919.

Dear Sir:-

We again beg to call your attention to the annual convention of the American Institute of Accountants which will be held September 15, 16 and 17 in Cincinnati at the Hotel Sinton.

To avoid confusion in arranging accommodations for the members, it has been decided to have them make their reservations direct. In accordance therewith, please find enclosed addressed postal which you will please fill out and forward to the Hotel Sinton. For the Committee to arrange their plans successfully and in due time, it was thought well also to have the members notify the Committee as to whether they would be able to attend. You will find enclosed for this purpose addressed and stamped postal.

In addition to the regular business, there will be addresses delivered by able speakers on the following subjects:

"Relation between invested capital and excess profits."

"Consolidated accounts."

"Capital Stock of no par value."

All of the above subjects, as you may see, are of more than passing interest to the accounting profession at this time and everyone should profit a great deal by hearing them discussed.

Every member of our Institute, for the interests of the profession, should make it a point to attend our annual meetings. Our strength as an institution can be augmented only thru united effort on the part of its members. Let us make this meeting, one that will long be remembered in point of welding its membership more closely together, in transacting business of real importance and in instilling into the minds of the members that the annual meetings can be made both profitable and pleasant. Flood your Committee with responses by return mail. They like work and will gladly go the limit to see that the meeting is the best that we have ever had.

ENTERTAINMENT

Interesting features for the pleasure of the members, their wives, sweethearts and guests while here, have been carefully planned, among them being an automobile tour in and around Cincinnati.

Special arrangements have been made for the entertainment of the ladies during the time of the business sessions which we believe will be both pleasant and profitable. Bring them along.

Again let us call your attention to the fact that we are going to make this meeting one to be long remembered.

HELP SWELL THE CROWD!

Cordially yours,

P. J. Beaman
CHAIRMAN.
