

August 2019

Call Again Tomorrow

Author Unknown

Follow this and additional works at: https://egrove.olemiss.edu/kgbsides_uk

Part of the Folklore Commons, and the Music Commons

Recommended Citation

Unknown, Author, "Call Again Tomorrow" (2019). Broadside Ballads: England. 668.
https://egrove.olemiss.edu/kgbsides_uk/668

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Kenneth S. Goldstein Collection: Broadside Ballads at eGrove. It has been accepted for inclusion in Broadside Ballads: England by an authorized administrator of eGrove. For more information, please contact egrove@olemiss.edu.

Call Again TO-MORROW.

Howard and Evans, Printers, 42, Long-Lane.

I'LL to court among all the nobility,
Hold up my head with the best,
Learn politeness and all incivility,
And be most presumptuously drest.

Spoken.—Then I shall get an officious situation and expence favours and places, like other great men; but if they offer me a bribe, as I am above all incorruption I shall, like my betters—pocket the affront with

Call again to-morrow
Can't you?
Call again to-morrow.

All ranks and degrees of the quality
To all my routs I'll invite,
And have with true inhospitality,
Public breakfasts at seven at night.

Spoken.—It will be pretty expensive, and I may over-run the constable, but to pay debts is unfashionable, so when a Dun knocks at the door, I shall look out of the window, and say

Call again, &c.

I'll then to support my indignity,
My hand to some heiress expose,
Then, with all proper pride and benignity,
On old friends I'll turn up my nose.

Spoken.—Conscience may tease me a little; but its all dickey with that in the New School; common sense and common honesty may do for common folks; but with us people of superogatory rank, it's all

Call again, &c.