A FEW FACTS ABOUT CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS AND THE ACCOUNTING PROFESSION

THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE

The American Institute of Certified Public Accountants is the national professional society of CPAs. This geographical directory lists firms all of whose partners are members of the Institute, and individual practitioners who are members.

First licensed in this country in 1896 in New York, CPAs are members of a profession which has more than tripled in size in the past two decades (to an estimated 140,000). It is expected that the number will increase to almost 200,000 by 1980.

At present, about 100,000 CPAs are members of the American Institute. The organization was established in 1887—nine years before the first CPA law was passed—as the American Association of Public Accountants.

COMPETENCE OF THE CPA

In order to become a CPA, one must satisfy education and, in many states, experience requirements, specified by state law, and pass a difficult two-and-a-half-day written examination. The examination is prepared and graded by the American Institute and is uniform in all states, territories and the District of Columbia. Virtually all successful CPA candidates are college graduates.

The Institute also sponsors and administers a continuing education program in which some 35,000 members of CPA firms participated last year.

PROFESSIONAL ETHICS

CPAs are subject to discipline under state laws and rules promulgated by state boards of accountancy. In addition, the individual practitioners and firms listed in this directory are subject to the American Institute's Code of Professional Ethics.

The conduct toward which Institute members strive is embodied in these broad Concepts:

Independence, integrity and objectivity. A certified public accountant should maintain his integrity and objectivity and, when engaged in the practice of public accounting, be independent of those he serves.

Competence and technical standards. He should observe the profession's technical standards and strive continually to improve his competence and the quality of his services.

Responsibilities to clients. He should be fair and candid with his clients and serve them to the best of his ability, with professional concern for their best interests, consistent with his responsibilities to the public.

Responsibilities to colleagues. He should conduct himself so as to promote cooperation and good relations among members of the profession.

Other responsibilities and practices. He should conduct himself so as to enhance the stature of the profession and its ability to serve the public.

The broad Concepts constitute the philosophical foundation upon which the Institute's enforceable Rules of Conduct and related Interpretations of the Division of Professional Ethics are based. The Concepts, Rules and Interpretations are found in the American Institute's Code of Professional Ethics. Single copies are available free upon request.

ENFORCEMENT

Complaints alleging violation of the Code of Professional Ethics are accepted by the Institute from any source. Names of complainants are held in confidence. If, after investigation, the Division of Professional Ethics believes a violation has occurred, the respondent is summoned before the Trial Board for a hearing. If found guilty, he may be admonished, suspended or expelled from Institute membership.

State CPA societies have similar disciplinary machinery.

State licensing boards may suspend or revoke CPA certificates for violation of provisions in state accountancy laws or rules of conduct of the regulatory board.

The Institute welcomes inquiries on any aspect of professional conduct and will respect confidences when requested.

PRACTICE REVIEW COMMITTEE

This committee, which performs an education function within the profession, will review alleged substandard reports by CPAs received from any source and will point out any departures from standards to the CPA concerned. Names of persons submitting such matters to the committee will not be disclosed.

OTHER INSTITUTE ACTIVITIES

143 AICPA boards, committees and task forces are assigned to studies of various aspects of the profession.

The Institute publishes America's leading accounting periodical, The Journal of Accountancy, as well as The Tax Adviser, another monthly magazine, and the bimonthly Management Adviser. The Journal has a circulation of over 165,000 accountants, business managers, government officials and educators.

The Institute's headquarters houses one of the most comprehensive libraries on accounting in the world.

In addition to their Institute membership, most CPAs belong to a state CPA society. While not formally affiliated with the Institute, the state societies work closely with it.

FINANCIAL ACCOUNTING STANDARDS BOARD

The Financial Accounting Standards Board is an independent organization supported by the Institute, accounting firms, the business community and the general public and is the leading authority on what constitutes "generally accepted accounting principles" through formal pronouncements on the accounting treatment to be applied to financial statements.

The Council, governing body of the Institute, has ruled that the FASB's pronouncements are binding on Institute members.
