Directory of Accounting Firms and Practitioners 1981

This directory lists alphabetically, by city within state, the individual accounting practitioners, accounting firms, and professional corporations whose partners or shareholders are all members of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

The CPA certificate first was issued in New York in 1896, and the accounting profession has experienced remarkable growth ever since. In recent years, the number of CPAs has doubled about every decade. In 1981, there are approximately 250,000 CPAs, of which nearly 175,000 are members of the AICPA.

CPA Qualifications

A candidate for the CPA certificate must satisfy certain stringent legal requirements in order to be considered for licensing by a state or territorial board of accountancy.

Education

Most states require that a CPA candidate have a baccalaureate degree, and it is increasingly common for candidates to hold graduate degrees.

Uniform CPA Examination

The Uniform CPA Examination measures the technical competence of CPA candidates in four areas of knowledge: auditing standards, accounting practice, accounting theory, and business law. The examination is prepared by the AICPA Board of Examiners, with the cooperation of the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy and the American Accounting Association. The examination is administered locally by the state boards of accountancy every May and November.

Experience

In many jurisdictions, candidates are required to have a specific amount of practical experience, usually in public accounting. The length of service required varies; for a college graduate, one or two years generally is sufficient. In some cases, additional education may be substituted for or may decrease the number of years of experience prescribed.

Continuing Professional Education.

Practitioners enroll in continuing professional education (CPE) courses, seminars, and training programs to learn about new professional developments and help them expand their practices. Thirty-nine states have mandated CPE as a requirement for certificate renewal.

Professional Ethics

Sole practitioners and individuals who are partners or shareholders in the firms listed in this book are subject to the AICPA Code of Professional Ethics. They also are subject to the requirements of state laws and the rules of boards of accountancy. Employees of such firms who are CPAs and AICPA members also must adhere to the same codes and requirements.

The code of professional ethics is administered by the AICPA and the forty-eight state CPA societies that are members of the Joint Ethics Enforcement Plan. The code states, in part, that a CPA's conduct should be guided by five broad ethical principles:

1. Independence, integrity, and objectivity. Certified public accountants should maintain their integrity and objectivity and, when engaged in the practice of public accounting, be independent of those they serve.
2. Competence and technical standards. Certified public accountants should observe the profession's technical standards and continually strive to improve their competence and the quality of their services.
3. Responsibilities to clients. Certified public accountants should be fair and candid with their clients and serve them to the best of their ability, with professional concern for their clients' best interests, consistent with CPAs' responsibilities to the public.
4. Responsibilities to colleagues. Certified public accountants should conduct themselves in a manner that will promote cooperation and good relations among members of the profession.
5. Other responsibilities and practices. Certified public accountants should conduct themselves in a manner that will enhance the stature of the profession and its ability to serve the public.

The concepts, rules, and interpretations of the AICPA Code of Professional Ethics, as well as a copy of the code itself, may be obtained from the AICPA, 1211 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036.

Enforcement

Complaints received by the Institute alleging violation of the AICPA Code of Professional Ethics, including allegations of association with substandard reports, are investigated by the AICPA Professional Ethics Division. If, after investigation, the division believes a violation has occurred, the respondent may be reprimanded administratively or summoned before a trial board for a hearing. If found guilty, the respondent will be publicly admonished and may be suspended or expelled from Institute and state society membership. Expulsion would only take place if the state society or societies involved participate in the AICPA Joint Ethics Enforcement Plan.

State licensing boards may suspend or revoke CPA certificates for violation of their rules of conduct or provisions in their state accountancy laws. The Institute welcomes inquiries on any aspect of professional conduct and will, when requested, respect confidences.

Practice Review Committee

Information, from any source, concerning allegedly substandard reports signed by CPAs is reviewed by the AICPA Practice Review Committee. If the committee finds that a report does not comply with applicable standards, the committee will inform the CPA about departures from accepted standards. Names of those submitting reports to the AICPA Practice Review Committee are held in confidence.

Division for CPA Firms

Periodic peer reviews, a key factor in the self-regulation of CPA firms and an important step in improving performance, are conducted under the guidance of the AICPA Division for CPA Firms. This division consists of two sections: the private companies practice section, for firms serving privately held clients, and the SEC practice section, for firms with an SEC practice. Over 2,000 CPA firms belong to one or both sections. Membership is voluntary.

Other Institute Activities

Numerous AICPA boards, committees, and task forces study various aspects of the profession, ranging from accounting and review services to technical standards.

The AICPA publishes America's leading accounting periodical, the Journal of Accountancy, which has a circulation of over 250,000. Other AICPA publications include the Tax Adviser, a monthly magazine offering practical advice on federal tax matters; the CPA Letter, a semimonthly newsletter highlighting technical and professional developments, and the Practicing CPA, a monthly newsletter for local practitioners. The Institute also offers technical and professional books, pamphlets, periodicals, self-study materials, and subscription materials.

The AICPA maintains the country's most comprehensive library of published materials on accounting and related subjects. Each year, the library staff compiles the Accountants' Index, a catalog of the thousands of books, pamphlets, and journals in the collection.

State Societies

Besides holding membership in the AICPA, many CPAs belong to their respective state societies. These societies, independent of the AICPA but working closely with it, can be found in the fifty states plus the District of Columbia, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and Puerto Rico.

Financial Accounting Standards Board

The Financial Accounting Standards Board, an independent organization supported by the Institute, accounting firms, the business community, and the general public, is the leading private-sector authority on what constitutes generally accepted accounting standards.

The AICPA Governing Council has recognized the FASB as the body that establishes accounting standards enforceable under the AICPA Code of Professional Ethics. The Securities and Exchange Commission has stated, in an official release, that it looks to the FASB to provide leadership in establishing and improving accounting standards.
