Directory of Accounting Firms and Practitioners 1985

This directory lists alphabetically, by city within state, the individual accounting practitioners, accounting firms, and professional corporations whose CPA partners or shareholders are all members of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

The CPA certificate first was issued in New York in 1896, and the accounting profession has experienced remarkable growth ever since. In 1985, more than 230,000 CPAs are members of the AICPA.

Qualifications to Become a CPA

A candidate for the CPA certificate must satisfy entry requirements specified in state accounting statutes, which are administered by state boards of accountancy. Most states require that a CPA candidate have at least a baccalaureate degree, and some require 150 hours of collegiate study with a concentration in accounting. Additionally, many jurisdictions require a period of practical experience under the supervision of a CPA. Finally, all candidates must successfully complete the Uniform CPA Examination to be licensed as a CPA.

Uniform CPA Examination

The Uniform CPA Examination measures the technical competence of CPA candidates in four areas of knowledge: auditing, accounting practice, accounting theory, and business law. The examination is prepared and graded under the direction of the AICPA Board of Examiners, with the cooperation of the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy. The examination is administered by the state boards of accountancy every May and November.

Continuing Professional Education

Practitioners enroll in continuing professional education (CPE) courses, seminars, and training programs to learn about new professional developments and to help them expand their practices. Forty-six states and the District of Columbia have mandated CPE as a requirement for certificate renewal.

Professional Ethics

Sole practitioners and individuals who are CPA partners or shareholders in the firms listed in this book are subject to the AICPA Code of Professional Ethics. They also are subject to the requirements of state laws and the rules of boards of accountancy. Employees of such firms who are CPAs and AICPA members also must adhere to the same codes and requirements.

The code of professional ethics is administered by the AICPA and the fifty state CPA societies that are members of the Joint Ethics Enforcement Plan. The code states, in part, that a CPA's conduct should be guided by five broad ethical principles.

1. Independence, integrity, and objectivity. Certified public accountants should maintain their integrity and objectivity and, when engaged in the practice of public accounting, be independent of those they serve.
2. General and technical standards. Certified public accountants should observe the profession's general and technical standards and continually strive to improve their competence and the quality of their services.
3. Responsibilities to clients. Certified public accountants should be fair and candid with their clients and serve them to the best of their ability, with professional concern for their clients' best interests, consistent with CPAs' responsibilities to the public.
4. Responsibilities to colleagues. Certified public accountants should conduct themselves in a manner that will promote cooperation and good relations among members of the profession.
5. Other responsibilities and practices. Certified public accountants should conduct themselves in a manner that will enhance the stature of the profession and its ability to serve the public.

The concepts, rules, and interpretations of the AICPA Code of Professional Ethics, as well as a copy of the code itself, may be obtained from the AICPA, 1211 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036-8775.

Enforcement

Complaints received by the Institute alleging violation of the AICPA Code of Professional Ethics, including allegations of association with substandard reports, are investigated by the AICPA Professional Ethics Division. If, after investigation, the division believes a violation has occurred, the respondent may be reprimanded administratively or summoned before a trial board for a hearing. If found guilty, the respondent will be publicly admonished and may be suspended or expelled from Institute and state society membership.

State licensing boards may suspend or revoke CPA certificates for violation of their rules of conduct or provisions in their state accountancy laws. The Institute welcomes inquiries on any aspect of professional conduct and will, when requested, respect confidences.

Division for CPA Firms

Periodic peer reviews, a key factor in the self-regulation of CPA firms and an important step in improving performance, are conducted under the supervision of the AICPA Division for CPA Firms. This division consists of two sections: the private companies practice section, for firms serving privately held clients, and the SEC practice section, for firms whose practice may include SEC registrants. Nearly 1,600 CPA firms belong to one or both sections. Membership is voluntary.

Other Institute Activities

Numerous AICPA boards, committees, and task forces study various aspects of the profession, ranging from accounting and review services to technical standards.

The AICPA publishes America's leading accounting periodical, the Journal of Accountancy, which has a circulation of over 280,000. Other AICPA publications include the following: The Tax Adviser, a monthly magazine offering practical advice on federal tax matters; The CPA Letter, a semi-monthly newsletter highlighting technical and professional developments; The Practicing CPA, a monthly newsletter for local practitioners; and the CPA Client Bulletin, a monthly newsletter containing useful information for CPA clients. The Institute also offers technical and professional books, pamphlets, periodicals, self-study materials, and subscription materials.

The AICPA maintains the country's most comprehensive library of published materials on accounting and related subjects. Each year, the library staff compiles the Accountants' Index, a catalog of the thousands of books, pamphlets, and journals in the collection.

State Societies

Besides holding membership in the AICPA, many CPAs belong to their respective state societies. These societies, independent of the AICPA but working closely with it, can be found in the fifty states plus the District of Columbia, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and Puerto Rico.

Financial Accounting Standards Board

The Financial Accounting Standards Board, an independent organization supported by the Institute, accounting firms, the business community, and the general public, is the leading private-sector authority on what constitutes generally accepted accounting principles.

The AICPA Governing Council has recognized the FASB as the body that establishes accounting standards enforceable under the AICPA Code of Professional Ethics. The Securities and Exchange Commission has stated in an official release that it looks to the FASB to provide leadership in establishing and improving accounting standards.

Additionally, the Institute is cooperating with the newly formed Government Accounting Standards Board and, in the interests of the worldwide harmonization of accounting principles, with the International Accounting Standards Committee.
