1 MIND HUSSY WHAT YOU DO 3

When I was of a tender age,
 And in my youthful prime,
 My mother oft' wou'd in a rage,
 Cry, girl take care in time;
 For you are now so forward grown
 The men will you pursue,
 And all the day this was her tone,
 Mind, huffy, what you do!

2

Regardless of her fond advice,
 I chatten'd o'er the plain,
 Where I was courted in a trice,
 By each young Silv'an swain,
 Yet by the bye I must declare,
 I virtue had in view,
 Altho' my mother cry'd beware,
 Mind, huffy, what you do.

To Damon, gavest of the green,
 I gave my youthful hand,
 His blooming face, and comely mien,
 I cou'd not well withstand,
 But strait to church we tript away
 With hearts both firm and true,
 Altho' my mother ceas'd to say,
 Mind, huffy, what you do.

4

Ye lasses all attend to me,
 And hence this lesson learn,
 When to your mind a man you see,
 Ne'er look morose or stern;
 But take him with a free good will,
 Should he have love for you,
 Altho' your mother's crying still,
 Mind, huffy, what you do.
