HOW CAN YOU SAY GOOD-BYE.

---

Two loving sweethearts had quarrel'd,
Just in the way lovers do ;
Over a wee tiny nothing,
Though each was constant and true.
But this small quarrel had drifted,
And they were saying ' Good-bye,'
But the young fellow relented,
Manfully he made reply :

Chorus.

How can you say ' Good-bye,'
How can you say ' farewell' ?
Are we to sever'd be,
When we both love so well ?
Say you forget and forgive,
Friends be, and cause no more pain,
Don't let us part, Don't break my heart,
Say you'll be friends again.

Tho' all the trouble was nothing,
Yet they would neither give way ;
And for some months they were parted,
Neither the first word would say.
But he could see she was pining
Once when he saw her she cried ;
Then when her eyes said : " Be friends, love,"
This is just what he replied :

Chorus.

So there's a moral for sweethearts,
That's should they ever fall out ;
" Toss up " who's first to beg pardon,
Don't leave each other in doubt.
So if you fall out for nothing,
' Fall in ' again, that's the way !
Think of this sweet little story,
" Toss up " who's first got to say :

Chorus.
