

4-1938

Authors of Articles in this Issue

American Institute of Accountants

Follow this and additional works at: <https://egrove.olemiss.edu/jofa>

Part of the Accounting Commons

---

Recommended Citation

American Institute of Accountants (1938) "Authors of Articles in this Issue," Journal of Accountancy: Vol. 65: Iss. 4, Article 14.

Available at: <https://egrove.olemiss.edu/jofa/vol65/iss4/14>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Archival Digital Accounting Collection at eGrove. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of Accountancy by an authorized editor of eGrove. For more information, please contact egrove@olemiss.edu.

AUTHORS OF ARTICLES IN THIS ISSUE

ANDREW BARR, who comments on A Statement of Accounting Principles, has been assistant professor of accounting at Yale University since 1926. He is a member of the American Institute of Accountants. Professor Barr is a graduate of the University of Illinois, where he received the B.S. degree in 1923 and the M.S. degree in 1924. During 1924-1926 he was associated with Reckitt, Bennington & LeClear (now Scovell, Wellington & Co.), Chicago. He is a member of the Illinois and Connecticut societies and of the American Accounting Association.

SAMUEL J. BROAD, contributor to the symposium on the classification of surplus, is a partner of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., New York. He is a member of the American Institute of Accountants and has been active on a number of its committees. At the present time he is chairman of the committee on technical information and is a member of the committee on accounting procedure and of the special committee on coöperation with the S.E.C.

JAMES L. DOHR, who comments on A Statement of Accounting Principles, is associate professor of accounting at Columbia University. A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, he later received the LL.B. degree from Columbia University. He is a certified public accountant of Wisconsin and Michigan. He has been a member of the Columbia faculty since 1924 and is also a partner of the law firm of Greene & Greene. Professor Dohr is a member of the American Institute of Accountants and is the author of several well known texts. He is a past president of the American Accounting Association.

WYMAN P. FISKE, who comments on A Statement of Accounting Principles, is professor of accounting at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is a graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, where for five years following his graduation he was instructor of accounting. He has served as office manager of the Boston office of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. He is a member of the Massachusetts Bar. Professor Fiske is co-author of a book entitled Accounting.

HOWARD C. GREER, contributor to the symposium on classification of surplus, is professor of accounting at the University of Chicago, and since 1927 has been associated with the Institute of American Meat Packers as director of accounting. He is the author of a number of books and articles dealing with accounting principles and with the cost accounting problems of various industries. He is a member of the American Institute of Accountants and a certified public accountant of Illinois and Ohio.

JOHN HASKELL, author of "The Securities and Exchange Commission, the accountant, and the stock exchange," is the executive secretary of the committee on stock list of the New York Stock Exchange, having joined the staff in 1931. Shortly after his graduation from the United States Military Academy in 1925 Mr. Haskell resigned from the Army and became associated with the National City Company in the field of European finance.

WILLIAM A. PATON, contributor to the symposium on classification of surplus, is professor of accounting at the University of Michigan, now on leave of absence to teach for a year at the University of California. He is a member of the American Institute of Accountants and has been a member of council of the Institute.

MAURICE E. PELOUBET, contributor to the symposium on classification of surplus, is a partner of Pogson, Peloubet & Co. He is a member of the American Institute of Accountants and has served on many of its committees. He was for six years a member of council of the Institute and is at present a member of the committee on publication and chairman of the board of examiners.

THOMAS H. SANDERS, contributor to the symposium on classification of surplus, has been a member of the faculty of the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration since 1921, and now holds the post of professor of accounting. He is the author of several well-known texts in accounting, and has been a frequent contributor of articles to professional publications. He is the author of the study entitled "Reports to Stockholders," prepared for the committee on statistical reporting and uniform accounting for industry of the Business Advisory and Planning Council for the Department of Commerce, and is joint author of A Statement of Accounting Principles.

ALLEN R. SMART, author of "Evolution of the Board of Tax Appeals," has been a member of the American Institute of Accountants and its predecessor organizations since 1892. He is a partner of Allen R. Smart & Co., Chicago, and is a certified public accountant of Illinois.