Annual Meeting &
Holiday
Party

President Philip B. Chenok opened the 1990 Annual Meeting and Holiday Party by welcoming all staff members and introducing the Executive Staff members who helped him meet the challenges during the past year. We then viewed the film, "AICPA Annual Report", produced by our Public Relations Division. Highlighted were some of the meaningful events of the past year and possible future major changes to the Accounting Profession.

The President's message addressed the Persian Gulf crisis and heartfelt wishes were extended for a quick and peaceful resolution. President Chenok informed us that the AICPA is participating in a nationwide effort to provide support to the families of recent American Hostages in Iraq and Kuwait. A State Department sanctioned organization called USA GIVE provides a toll free phone number that families can call for guidance on legal and financial matters among other things. Some 70 CPAs have already helped hostage family members.

"Despite a recession", President Chenok stated, "we will continue to serve our members and the public interest with the same fervor as we did during the past year."

Although 1990 was eventful, it was not an easy year. We can expect challenges in the upcoming year. With all staff members working together and putting their best efforts forward, we will successfully meet those challenges in '91.

The "AICPA Live" film saluted some of the 100 non-camera shy staff members who received promotions in 1990. Also honored were staff members who will achieve some significant plateau of service to the Institute next year. Service award recipients were:
