If you encounter a problem with a copy machine please report it immediately to the 3rd floor receptionist (X3318). Each copy machine is tagged with a copier ID (i.e. Copier A, Copier B, Copier C, etc.) which is located on the top right side of the copy machine. Please be sure to provide the receptionist with the ID and a brief description of the problem. A service call will be promptly placed.

Thank you for your cooperation!

ESP Day

Thanks to everyone who submitted a suggestion on "Suggestion Day", Thursday, October 21st. We received a lot of creative, well thought-out ideas from employees in the NJ, NY and DC offices. The Suggestion Review Board is carefully reviewing and considering all suggestions received.

To show our appreciation, special ESP pens were available to everyone, and a lunch voucher worth $5.00 was presented to staff members who submitted a suggestion.

Happy
Anniversary
ESP

If you have a good idea but didn't get a chance to submit it on October 21st, you're in luck! In recognition of the one year anniversary of the AICPA Employee Suggestion Program, for the entire month of November, any employee who submits a suggestion through the ESP, will receive a "magic" mug with a special message on it.

So, get your ideas together and your ESP pens ready. If you have an idea that will save money, generate revenue, improve the quality of business operations, products or services, or improve safety, submit it on an official ESP form during the month of November. Remember, your ideas are worth money... $50 - $15,000 if implemented!

Celebrity
Dining Club
Books

Still available in Human Resources are Celebrity Dining Club books. The deadline has been extended to November 8th. If anyone is still interested, please contact Kimberley Hines on X3350. The New York edition is $15.00 and $18.00 for the New Jersey edition. Please make checks payable to Celebrity Dining, Inc.

Carve Out
Their Niche

Gourd-loving onlookers haunted the hallways of the Production-Periodicals section Friday, October 29 oohing and aahing over the display of skillfully carved pumpkins.

The Promotions Department hosted its first interdepartmental Pumpkin Microsurgery Invitational. Entries ranged from a flawless homage to Modigliani and an eerily accurate grinning skull to an exquisite witch and an outlandish Space Punk, complete with paper clip antennae.

There were a total of 12 pumpkins entered into the contest. The creators included Scott Cheney, Velda Gardiner, Melanie Heim, Julianne Lewis, Marie MacBryde, Kathy Rangoon, Shelly Recchio, Emily Riddle, Jim Stephenson, Peter Tuohy, Grant Weisbrot plus a special entry by today's hottest hunk, Fabio.

Shelly Recchio, Senior Production-Periodicals Associate, was caught happily in the middle of the action: the pumpkins were displayed on the file cabinet outside her cubicle. "I've never been so honored and excited - it's like Christmas arrived in October for me."

In keeping with the spirit of the contest, the impartial panel of judges, Julia Esposito (Promotions), Marie Bareille (Publications Administration) and Katharine Coveleski (Production and Editorial Services) were subject to bribes prior to the contest. Bribery was thoroughly condoned by Promotions, the contest sponsor.

To conform to AICPA standards, the judges' votes were tallied by a reputable independent auditor, David Perlman (Information Technology).

The winner of the first place prize for his pumpkin skull, Jim Stephenson (Promotions), was announced at 3:00 p.m.

Sometime this week we will display the photographs on the bulletin board in the Luncheon Club.
