Liberty
Science
Center

It was a little over one year ago that the Liberty Science Center first opened its doors to the public and began bringing the wonder of science to the millions of people living in the greater New York/New Jersey Metropolitan area.

The Liberty Science Center offers a variety of presentations exhibits including their two most popular ones, the Touch Tunnel, a 100-foot-long pitch-black crawl through total darkness, and "Virtual Hoops," the exciting hands-on virtual reality basketball game. The Liberty Science Center also houses the world's largest OMNIMAX™ theater.

Center con't.

The Liberty Science Center is located at 251 Phillip Street, Jersey City in the Jersey City State Park. It's easy to reach by car (just off the NJ Turnpike Exit 14E), bus or ferry. It also offers impressive views of New York Harbor and the Manhattan Skyline.

For further information on exhibits, special programs and events you can call the Liberty Science Center at (201) 451-0006.

Rite of Spring

Its been a number of years since we've experienced a winter with one storm after another. At last count we were up to number 16!! At this point in time, we're sure no one doubts that "you can't fool Mother Nature".

A sincere note of thanks to all staff members who weathered through the 16 storms (to date). This year wins the award for commuting nightmares. No, we won't ask you to share your stories but we do want you to join us in welcoming "SPRING '94".

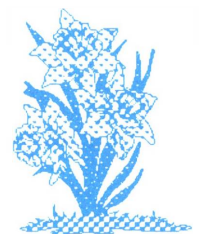

During this first week of spring, we've decorated the luncheon areas at each location with flowers and posters. On Thursday, March 24, we invite you to participate in a "spring" drawing for either a house plant or a free lunch. There will be three drawings in DC, 10 in NY and 30 in NJ. Just fill out the entry form below and, in NY and NJ, drop it off in the luncheon area and in DC give to Ela Work. The deadline for entries is 12:00 noon on Thursday, March 24. On Friday, March 25, direct from your local pretzel vendor, a free soft pretzel will be given to each employee in the luncheon areas beginning at 12:00 noon up to 3:00 p.m. In NJ, springtime luncheon specials will be available for purchase at the Luncheon Club. Look for the menu posted on the Employee Bulletin Board.

We hope you enjoy the "Rite of Spring" events at the Institute. Again, we commend your special efforts during what we consider to be a most trying winter. Thank you.
