Editorial

bered that the advice of the accounting profession was disregarded in the case of the Corporation Tax Law, and the consequence is that it has now become necessary—and is admitted by the Treasury Department to be necessary—to amend the law in accordance with the advice which was overridden. With this example before them, sponsors of the proposal no doubt will listen more attentively to the words of warning and advice which will be forthcoming by the accountants in all parts of the country.

Announcement

A. P. Richardson, of New York, was recently elected Secretary of the American Association of Public Accountants to fill the vacancy caused by the declination of the Secretary-elect, Mr. Thompson, to accept the position. Mr. Richardson will also be Editor of THE JOURNAL OF ACCOUNTANCY.

Mr. Richardson is an experienced journalist and brings to his duties a large experience, intelligent enthusiasm, and a strong interest in the development of accountancy. To the older members of the Association it will be hard to associate with this office any other name than that of T. Cullen Roberts, who has so long and faithfully served the Association as its Secretary, but it is a matter of congratulation that so able a successor has been found.

Mr. Richardson's office will be for the present at 55 Liberty Street.
