UM Pharmacy Administrator Named Fellow of APhA

Alicia Bouldin recognized for professional achievement, service

MARCH 11, 2015 BY GABRIELLE GERO

Alicia Bouldin

OXFORD, Miss. – The American Pharmacists Association Academy of Pharmaceutical Research and Science has named Alicia Bouldin a 2015 APhA fellow.

Awarded to only 15 individuals this year, the designation honors members who have demonstrated exemplary professional achievements and service to the profession. Bouldin, an associate dean and professor in the University of Mississippi School of Pharmacy, will be honored March 27-30 at the APhA Annual Meeting and Exposition in San Diego.

"To have been nominated was itself a humbling occasion, for that suggests that several of my peers felt that my contributions were worthy of noting in this way," Bouldin said. "Then to have been selected by the committee was a thrill and a bit difficult for me to grasp."

Bouldin, who serves as associate dean of outcomes assessment and learning advancement and professor in the Department of Pharmacy Administration, joined APhA as a student in the late 1980s. During graduate school, she became a member of the Academy of Pharmaceutical Research and Science, which she said opened her eyes to how the organization is involved with the practice and development of pharmacy and pharmaceutical sciences.

Through APhA, she was able to network and foster important development opportunities through the Economic, Social and Administrative Sciences section. She has presented research at the organization's annual meetings and gained valuable feedback from colleagues nationwide.

As a faculty member, Bouldin has reviewed manuscripts for the association's journal and served as adviser to the UM chapter of the APhA Academy of Student Pharmacists.

"Working with student leaders in that capacity for eight years was a privilege and taught me so much about leadership development and the potential of the next generation of pharmacists," Bouldin said.

Tina Brock, associate dean and professor of clinical pharmacy at the University of California at San Francisco, organized nominations for Bouldin. John Bentley, UM professor of pharmacy administration, and Donna West-Strum, UM professor and chair of the Department of Pharmacy Administration, contributed nomination letters.

"There is no doubt that Dr. Bouldin is very deserving of this high honor," Bentley said. "She is a distinguished teacher, an accomplished scholar and scientist, and a highly capable administrator. Furthermore, she is a passionate servant leader. She actively and enthusiastically demonstrates professional commitment through her participation and leadership in many different service roles, including as an active and contributing member of APhA for more than 20 years."
