

Hill Country Picnic 2010

Document_type [log]

Date 25 June 2010

Audio file [burnside_duwayne.wav]

[0:00:35] Burnside describes the Northern sound as more “jazzy,” with more “flavor.”

[0:01:35] Burnside discusses how in the Northern sound one man and a guitar can sound like a whole band.

[0:02:55] He discusses how his sound is different from the average Hill Country performer. Yet, it still has elements of the North sound.

[0:03:24] He discusses how in the 50s and 60s, artists like Muddy Waters had to leave Mississippi to make a living, yet in the 90s, artists like R.L. did not need to leave Mississippi.

[0:03:55] He discusses why R.L. stayed in Mississippi. This is because R.L. had a family to raise and because of how respected he was in the North Mississippi community. Mississippi was home

[0:05:07] End of interview.